With the help of technology, we have been able to introduce the classroom to opportunities and resources they may not otherwise be able to access. Video clips, educational games, and virtual simulations are just a few examples of technology resources we use to engage and educate the students in the classroom. With the help of designed software, Teachers use images, videos, flash, graphs, subject tools, and games to make the lectures more vivid and fun. Not only do interactive flat panels bring convenience and flexibility to classrooms, but they also increase the engagement of teachers and students.
